PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE.

WASHINGTON, December 4.—In addressing my third annual message to the law making branch of the government, it is gratifying to be able to state that during the past year success has generally attended the effort to execute all laws found upon the statute book. The policy has been not to inquire into the wisdom of laws already enacted, but to learn their spirit and interest and to enforce them accordingly. The past year has, under wise Providence, been one of general prosperity to the nation. It has, however, been attended with more than usual chastisements in loss of life and property by storm and fire. These disasters have served to call forth the best elements of human nature in our country and develop a friendship for us on the part of foreign nations which goes far towards alleviating the distresses occasioned by these calamities, and the benevolent who have so generously shared their means with the victims of these misfortunes, will reap their reward in the consciousness of having performed a noble act, and in receiving the grateful thanks of men, women and children whose suffering they have relieved.

The relations of the United States with foreign powers continue to be friendly. The year has been an eventful one, in witnessing two great nations, speaking one language, settling by peaceful arbitration disputes of long standing and liable at any time to bring these nations into a bloody and costly conflict. An example has thus been set which, if successful in its final issue, may be followed by other civilized nations and finally be the means of returning to productive industry. Millions of men are now maintained to settle the disputes of nations by the bayonet and the broad-side. I transmit herewith a copy of the treaty alluded to, which has been concluded since adjournment of Congress with her Britannic majesty, and a copy of protocols of the conference of the commissioners by whom it was negotiated. This treaty provides a method for adjusting the questions pending between the two nations and various questions are to be adjusted by arbitration.

I recommend Congress at an early day to make the necessary provision for the tribunal at Geneva, and for the several commissions on the part of the United States, called for by the treaty. His Majesty the King of Italy, the President of the Swiss confederation and His Majesty the Emperor of Brazil, have consented on the joint request of the two powers, to name an arbitrator for the tribunal at Geneva. I have caused my thanks to be suitably expressed for the readiness with which the joint request has been complied with by the appointment of gentlemen of eminence and learning to these important positions. His majesty the emperor of Germany has been pleased to comply with a joint request of the two governments and has consented to act as arbitrator of the disputes water boundary between the United States and Great Britain. The contracting parties in the treaty have undertaken to regard as between themselves certain principles of public law for which the United States have contended from the commencement of their history. They have also agreed to bring these principles to the knowledge of other maritime powers, and to invite them to accede to them. Negotiations are going on as to the form and mode by which invitation is to be extended to other powers.

I recommend that the legislation necessary on the part of the United States to bring into operation articles of treaty relating to the fisheries and to other matters touching the relations of the United States toward British North American provinces to become operative so soon as proper legislation shall be had on the part of Great Britain and its possessions. It is much to be desired that this legislation may become operative before the fishermen of the United States begin to make their arrangements for the coming season. I have addressed a communication, of which a copy is transmitted herewith, to the Governors of New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana, Michigan, Illinois and Wisconsin, urging upon the Governors of these States respectively the necessary action on their part to carry into effect the object of the articles of the treaty which contemplates the use of canals on either side connected with the navigation of the lakes and rivers, forming the boundary on terms of equality by the inhabitants of both countries. It is to be hoped that the importance of the object and the benefits to flow therefrom, will secure the speedy approval and legislative sanction of the States concerned. I renew the recommendation for an appropriation for determining the true position of the forty-ninth parallel of latitude, where it forms the boundary between the United States and the British North American provinces between the Lake of the Woods and the summit of the Rocky mountains. The early action of Congress on this recommendation would put it in the power of the war department to place a force in the field during next summer.

The resumption of diplomatic relations between France and Germany has enabled me to give directions for the withdrawal of protection extended to Germans in France by the diplomatic and consular representatives of the United States in that country. It is just to add that the delicate duty of this protection has been performed by the minister and the consul general of Paris, and the various consuls in France, under the supervision of the latter, with great kindness as well as with prudence and tact. Their course has received the commendation of the German government, and has wounded no susceptibility of the French. The government of the Emperor of Germany continues to manifest a friendly feeling toward the United States and a desire to harmonize with the moderate and just policy which this government maintains in its relations with the Asiatic powers, as well as with the South American republics. I have given assurances that the friendly feelings of that government are fully shared by the people of the United States.

The ratification of the consular and naturalization convention with the Austro Hungarian Empire has been exchanged. I have been officially informed of the annexation of the States of the Church to the Kingdom of Italy, and the removal of the capital of that kingdom to Rome, and in conformity with the established policy of the United States I have recognized this change. The ratification of the new treaty of commerce between the United States and Italy has been exchanged. The two powers have agreed on this treaty that private property at sea shall be respected during a war between the two powers. The United States have spared no opportunity of incorporating this rule into the obligations of nations.

The forty-first Congress at its third session made an appropriation for an organization of a mixed commission for adjusting upon the claims of citizens of the United States against Spain, growing out of the insurrection of Cuba. That commission has since been organized. I transmit herewith the correspondence relating to its formation and its jurisdiction. It is to be hoped this commission will afford the complainants a complete remedy for their injuries.

It has been made the agreeable duty of the United States to preside over a conference at Washington between the plenipotentiary of Spain and the allied South American Republics, which has resulted in an armistice, with the reasonable assurence of a permanent peace. The intimate friendly relations which have so long existed between the United States and Russia continue undisturbed. The visit of the third son of the Emperor is proof that there is no desire on the part of his government to dismiss the cordiality of these relations. The hospitable reception which has been given to the grand duke is proof that on our part we share the wishes of that government. The inexcusable course of the Russian minister at Washington, rendered it necessary to ask his recall, and to decline to longer receive that functionary as a diplomatic representative. It was impossible with self respect or with a just regard to the dignity of the country, to permit Mr. Catacazy to continue to hold intercourse with this government after his personal abuse of a government official, and during his persistent interference, through various means, with the relations between the United States and other powers. In accordance with my wishes this government has been relcived of further intercourse with Mr. Catacazy, and the management of the Imperial legation has passed into the hands of a gentleman entirely unobjectionable. With Japan we continue to maintain intimate relations. The cabinet of the Micado, since the close of the last session of Congress, selected citizens of the United States to serve in offices of importance in several departments of the government. I have reason to think that the selection is due to an appreciation of the disinterestedness of the policy which the United States has pursued toward Japan. It is our desire to continue this disinterestedness and just policy with China and Japan. The correspondence transmitted herewith shows there is no disposition on the part of this government to swerve from its established course. Prompted by a desire to put an end to the barbarous treatment of our shipwrecked sailors on the Corean coast, I instructed our minister at Pekin to endeavor to conclude a convention with Corea for securing the safety and humane treatment of such mariners. Admiral Rodgers was instructed to accompany him with sufficient force to protect him in case of need. A small surveying party sent out, on reaching the coast, was treacherously attacked at a disadvantage; ample opportunity was given for explanation and apology for the insult; neither came; a force then landed after an ardurous march over a ragged and difficult country. The forts from which the outrages were committed were reduced by gallant assault and were destroyed. Having thus punished criminal and having vindicated the honor of the flag the exped tion returned, finding it impossible under the circumstances to conclude the desired convention. I respectfully refer to the correspondence relating thereto here with submitted and leave the subject for such action as Congress may see fit to take. The republic of Mexico has not yet repealed the very objectionable laws establishing what is known as the "Free Zone" on the frontiers of the United States. It is hoped that this may yet be done, and also that more stringent measures may be taken by that republic for restraining lawless persons on its frontiers. I hope that Mexico by its own action will soon relieve this government of the difficulties experienced from these causes. Our relations with the various republics of Central and South America continue, with one excention, to be cordial and friendly. I recommend some action by congress regarding the overdue installments under the award of the Venezuelan claims of 1866. The internal dissensions of this government present no justification for the absence of effort to meet their solemn treaty and obligations. The ratification of an extradition treaty with Nicaragua has been exchanged. It is a subject for congratulation that the great empire of Brazil has taken the initiatory step towards the abolition of slavery. Our relations with that empire, always cordial, will naturally be made so by this act. It is not too much that the gover ment of Brazil may hereafter find it for its interest as well as historically right, to advance towards entire emancipation more rapidly than the present act contemplates.

The true prosperity and greatness of a nation is to be found in the elevation and education of its laborers. It is a subject for regret that the reforms in this direction, which were voluntarily promised by the statesmen of Spain, have not been carried out in the West Indies colonies. The laws and regulations for the apparent abolition of slavery in Cuba and Porto Rico leaves most of the laborers in condage, with no hope of release until their lives become a burden to their employers.

I desire to direct your attention to the fact that the citizens of the United States, or person claiming to be citizens of the United States are large holders in foreign lands of this species of property forbidden by the fundamental law of their alleged country. I recommend to congress to provide by stringent legislation a suitable remedy against the holding, owning, or dealing in slaves or being interested in slave property in foreign lands, either as owners, hirers, or mortgagees by citizens of the United States. It is to be regretted that the disturbed condition of the island of Cuba continue to be a source of annoyance and anxiety. The existence of a protracted struggle in such close proximity to our own territory, without apparent prospect of an early termination cannot be other than an object of concern to a people who, while abstaining from interference in the affairs of other powers, naturally prefer to see every country in the undisturbed enjoyment of peace, liberty, and the blessings of free institutions. Our naval commanders in Cuban waters have been instructed, in case it should become necessary, to spare no effort to protect the lives and property of bona fide American citizens and to maintain the dignity of the flag. It is hoped that all pending questions with Spain growing out of the affairs in Cuba, may be adjusted in the spirit of peace and conciliation which has hitherto guided the two powers in their treatment of such questions, to give importance, and to add to the efficiency of our diplomatic relations with Japan and China, and to further aid in retaining the good opinion of those people and secure to the United States its share of the commerce destined to flow between those nations and the balance of the commercial world. I earnestly recommend that an appropriation be made to support at least four American youths in each of those countries, to serve as part of the official family of our ministers there. Our representatives should not even then be placed upon an equality with the representatives of Great Britain and of some other powers. As now situated our representatives in Japan and China have to depend for interpreters and translators upon natives and those countries who know our language imperfectly or procure for the occasion the service of employees in foreign business houses or the interpreters to other foreign ministers. I would also recommend liberal measures for the purpose of posting the American lines of steamers now plying between San Francisco and Japan and China, and the Australian line, almost our only remaining lines of ocean steamers, and of increasing their service.

The national debt has been reduced to the extent of $86,057,126,80 during the present year, and by the negotiation of national bonds at a lower rate of interest, the interest has been so far diminished that now the sum to be raised for the interest account is nearly $17,000,000 more than on the 1st of March, 1869. It was highly desirable that this rapid diminution should take place both to strengthen the credit of the country and to convince its citizens of their entire ability to meet every dollar of liability without bankrupting them. But in view of the accomplishment of these desirable ends, of the rapid development of the resources of the country, its increasing ability to meet large demands, and the amount already paid, it is not desirable that the present resources of the country should continue to be taxed in order to continue this rapid payment, and I therefore recommend a modification of both the tariff and internal tax laws, and recommend that all taxes from internal sources be abolished except those collected from spiritous, vinous and malt liquors, tobacco in its various forms, and from stamps. In readjusting the tariff, I suggest that a careful estimate be made of the amount of surplus revenue collected under the present laws, after providing for the current expenses of the government, the interest account and the sinking fund; that this surplus be reduced in such a manner as to afford the greatest relief to the greatest number. There are many articles not produced at home, but which enter largely into general consumption, through articles which are manufactured at home, such as medicines, compounds, etc., from which very little revenue is derived, but which enter into general use. All such articles I recommend to be placed on the free list. Should a further reduction prove advisable, I would, then recommend that it be made upon those articles which did best bear it without disturbing home production or reducing the wages of American labor. I have not entered into figures, because to do so would be to repeat what will be laid before you in the report of the secretary of the treasury. The present laws for collecting the revenue, pay collectors of customs small salaries, but provide for moities, shares in all seizures, which, at principal ports of entry particularly, raise the compensation of those officials to a large sum. It has always seemed to me as if this system must at times, work pernicious ly; it holds out an inducement to dishonest men, should such get possession of those offices, to be lax in their scrutiny of goods entered, to enable them finally to make large seizures. Your attention is respectfully invited to this subject. Continued fluctuations in the value of gold as compared with the national currency has a most damaging effect upon the increase and development of the country in keeping up the prices of all articles necessary in every day life. It fosters a spirit of gambling prejudicial alike to national morals and the national finances. If the question can be met as to how to give a fixed value constantly and uniformly approaching par with specie, a very desirable object will be gained.

For the operations of the army in the past year, the expense for maintaining it, the estimates for the ensuing year, and for continuing sea coast and other improvements conducted under the supervision of the war department, I refer you to the accompaning report of the secretary of war.

I call your attention to the provisions of the act of congress approved March 3, 1869, which discontinues promotions in the staff corps of the army until provided for by law.

I recommend that the number of officers in each grade in the staff corps be fixed, and that whenever the number in any one grade falls below the number so fixed, that the vacancy may be filled by promotion from the grade below. I also recommend that when the office of chief of a corps becomes vacant, the place may be filled by selection from the corps in which the vacancy exists. The report of the secretary of the navy shows an improvement in the number and efficiency of the navy force without material increases in the expense of supporting it. This is due to the policy which has been adopted and is being extended as fast as our material will admit of using smaller vessels as cruisers on the several stations. By this measure we have been enabled to occupy at once a larger extent of cruising ground, to visit more frequently to posts where the presence of our flag is desirable, and generally to discharge more efficiently the appropriate duties of the navy in time of peace, without exceeding the number of men or the expenditure authorized by law. During the past year the navy has, in addition to its regular service, supplied the men and officers for the vessels of the coast survey, and has completed the surveys authorized by congress of the Isthmus of Darien and Tehuantepec, and under like authority has sent out an expedition furnished and equipped to explore the unknown ocean of the north. The suggestions of the report as to the necessity for increasing and improving the material of the navy, and the plan recommended for reducing the personnel of the service to a peace standard by the gradual abolition of certain grades of officers, the reduction of others, and the employment of some in the service of the commercial marine, are well considered, and deserve the thoughtful attention of congress. I also recommend that all promotions in the navy, above the rank of captain, be by selection instead of by senority.

This course will secure in the higher grades, greater efficiency and hold out an incentive to young officers to improve themselves in the knowledge of their profession. The present cost of maintaining the navy, its cost compared with that of the preceding year and the estimates for the ensuing year, are contained in the accompaning report of the secretary of the navy.

The enlarged recipts of the post office department, as shown by the accompanying report of the postmaster general, exhibit a gratifying increas in the branch of the public service. It is the index of the growth of education and of the prosperity of the people; two elements higly conducive to the vigor and stability of republics. With a vast territory like ours, much of it sparesly populated, but all requiring the services of the mail, it is not at present to be expected that this department can be made self sustaining, but a gradual approach to this end from year to year is confidentially relied on. The day is not far distent when the post office department of the government will prove a much greater blessing to the whole people than it is now. The suggestions of the postmaster general for improvements in the department presided over by him are earnestly recommended to your special attention. Especially do I recommend favorable consideration of the plan for uniting the telegraph system of the United States with the postal system. It is believed that by such a course the cost of telegraphing could be much reduced, and the service as well if not better rendered. It would secure the further advantage of extending the telegraph through portions of the country where private enterprise will not construct it.

Commerce—trade, above all the efforts to bring a people widely separated into a community of interest, are always benefitted by rapid intercommunication. Education the ground work of republican institutions, is encouraged by increasing the facilities together, speedy news from all parts of the country, and the desire to reap the benefit of such improvements will stimulate education. I refer you to the postmaster general for full details of the operation of last year and for comparative statements of results with former years. There has been imposed upon the executive branch of the government the execution of the act of congress, approved April 20, 1871, and commonly known as the ku-klux law, in a portion of the State of South Carolina. The necessity of the course pursued will be demonstrated by the report of the committee to investigate southern outrages. Under the provisions of the above act I issued a proclamation calling the attention of the people of the United States to the same, declaring my reluctance to exercise any of the extraordinary powers thereby conferred upon me, except in case of imperative necessity, but making known my purpose to exercise such powers whenever it should become necessary to do so, for the purpose of securing to all citizens of the United States the peaceful enjoyment of the rights guaranteed to them by the constitution and the laws. After the passage of this law information was received from time to time that combinations of the character referred to in this law existed and were powerfull in many parts of the southern States, particularly in certain counties of the State of South Carolina. Careful investigation was made, and it was ascertained that in nine counties of that State such combinations were active and powerful, embracing a sufficient portion of the citizens to control the local authority and having, among other things, the object of depriving the emancipated class of the substantial benefits of preventing freedom, and of the free political action of those citizens who did not sympathize with their own views. Among their operations were frequent scourgings and occasional assassinations, generally perpetrated at night by disguised persons, the victims in almost all cases being citizens of different political sentiments from their own or freed persons who had shown a disposition to claim equal rights with other citizens.

Thousands of inoffensive and well-disposed citizens were the sufferers by this lawless violence. Therefore, on the 12th of October, 1871, a proclamation was issued in terms of the law, calling upon the members of those combinations to disperse within five days, and to deliver to the marshall or military officers of the United States all arms, ammunition, uniform, disguises, and other means or implements, used by them for carrying out their unlawful purposes. This warning not having been heeded, on the 17th of October another proclamation was issued suspending the privilege of the writ of habeas corpus in nine counties in that State. Directions were given that within the counties so designated persons supposed upon creditable information to be members of such unlawful combinations should be arrested by the military forces of the United States and delivered to the marshall to be dealt with according to law. In two of said counties, York and Spartanburg, many arrests have been made. At the last account the number of persons thus arrested was one hundred and sixty-eight. Several hundred, whose criminality was ascertained to be of an inferior degree, were released for the present. These have generally made confessions of their guilt. Great caution has been exercised in making these arrests, and notwithstanding the large number, it is believed that no innocent person is now in custody. The prisoners will be held for regular trial in the judicial tribunals of the United States. As soon as it appeared that the authorities of the United States were about to take vigorous measures to enforce the law, many persons absconded, and there is good ground for supposing that all of such persons have violated the law. A full report of what has been done under this law will be submitted to congress by the attorney general. In Utah there still remains a remnant of barbarism repugnant to civilization, to decency and to the laws of the United States. Territorial officers, however, have been found who are willing to perform their duty in a spirit of equity and with a due sense of sustaining the majesty of the law.

Neither polygamy nor any other violation of existing statutes will be permitted within the territory of the United States. It is not with the religion of the self-styled saints that we are now dealing, but with their practices. They will be protected in the worship of God according to the dictates of their conscience, but they will not be permitted to violate the laws under the cloak of religion. It may be advisable for congress to consider what, in the execution of the laws against polygamy, is to be the status of plural wives and their offspring. The propriety of congress passing an enabling act, authorizing the territorial legislature of Utah to legitimatize all children born prior to a time fixed in the act, might be justified by its humanity to these innocent children. This is a suggestion only, and not a recommendation.

The policy pursued towards the Indians has resulted favorably, so far as can be judged from the limited time during which it has been in operation. Through the exertions of the various societies of Christians to whom has been entrusted the execution of the policy, and the board of commissioners authorized by the law of April 10, 1869, many tribes of Indians have been induced to settle upon reservations, to cultivate the soil, to perform productive labor of various kinds, and to partially accept civilization. They are being cared for in such a way, it is hoped, as to induce those still pursuing their old habits of life to embrace the only opportunity which is left them to avoid extermination. I recommend liberal appropriations to carry out the Indian peace policy, not only because it is humane, Christian-like and economical, but because it is right. I recommend to your honorable consideration also the policy of granting a territorial government to the Indians in the Indian territory, west of Arkansas and Missouri, and south of Kansas. In doing so every right guaranteed to the Indians by treaty should be secured, such course might in time be the means of collecting most of the Indians now between the Missouri and the Pacific, and south of the British possessions, into one territory or in a State. The secretary of the interior has treated upon this subject at length, and I commend to you his suggestions.

I renew my recommendations that the public lands be regarded as a heritage to our children, to be disposed of only as required for occupancy and to actual settlers. Those already granted have been in great part disposed of in such a way as to secure access to the balance by the hardy settler who may wish to avail himself of them, but caution should be exercised even in attaining so desirable an object.

Educational interests may well be served by the grant of the proceeds of the sale of public lands to settlers. I do not wish to be misunderstood as recommending, in the least degree, a curtailment of what is being done by the general government for the encouragement of education. The report of the secretary of the interior, submitted with this, will give you all the information collected and prepared for publication in regard to the census taken during the year 1870. The operations of the bureau of education for the year; the patent office, the pension office; the land office; and the Indian bureau. The report of the commissioner of agriculture gives the operations of his department, for the year. As agriculture is the ground

OLD AGE.

Yes, I am old! my strength declines,
And wrinkles tell the touch of time.
Yet might I fancy these the signs,
Not of decay, but manhood's prime;
For all within is young and glowing,
Spite of old age's outwary showing.

Yes, I am old! the hall, the song,
The turf, the gun no more allure,
I shun the gay and gilded throng,
Yet, ah! how far more sweet and pure
Home's tranquil joys snd mental treasures
Than dissipation's proudest pleasures!

Yes, I am old! ambition's call,
Fame, wealth, distinction's keen pursuit,
That once could charm and cheat me—all,
Are now detected, passive, mute,
Thank God the passions and their riot
Are bartered for content and quiet!

Yes, I am old ; but as I press
The vale of years with willing feet,
Still do I find life's sorrows less,
And all its hallowed joys more sweet,
Since Time, for every rose he snatches,
Takes fifty thorns, with all their scratches.

Yes, I am old! and death hath ta'en
Full many a friend to memory dear;
Yet, when I die, 'twill sooth the pain
Of quitting all my sorrows here,
To think how all will be delighted
When in the skies again united.

Yes, I am old! experience now,
That best of guides, hath made me sage;
And, thus instructed, I'll vow
My firm conviction, that old age,
Of all our various terms of living,
Deserves the warmest, best thanksgiving.

A NIGHT WITH A MANIAC.

"The scenes of that night will never fade from my memory," said my dear friend Parker, as, one evening not long since, he sat, the centre of a pleasant circle at Orange, New Jersey. Poor Justin Harrington! How I loved that boy! For months I had seen that insanity—the dreadful disease which had wrought so much trouble in the Harrington family was showing itself in Justin. There seemed to be actually nothing that friend or relative could do to arrest the fatal disease To have spoken one word of warning, or proposed any precautionary measures, would only have driven the poor fellow at once to desperation; so we were compelled to watch him dritt out into the sea of hopeless insanity. He had been giving a successful tour, both professionally and pecuniarily.

That Justin was a natural musician no one could doubt who had ever heard him sing, or play the violin.

As the insideous disease a progressed, he seemed to become more and more attached to the little instrument; and it would have made your heart ache to have listened to the wails which, in his moments of sadness, he brought forth from the strings. Every emotion the human soul is capable of enjoying, suffering, or enduring, he was able to portray. Distanti palpite was his favorite instrumental piece; and sometimes I have been compelled to leave the room to hide the tears which this faithful delineation of the performer's spiritualized conception of the theme would bring to my eyes.

One evening, after having delivered a lecture in Worcester, Massachusetts, on my way to the hotel of the place, I was informed that Justin was stopping at the same house—that he was as wild as a hawk, and had been calling for me.

I went immediately to his room, never for a moment supposing but what I could soothe and control him.

Two of his brothers were below, but he persistently refused to see them. I tried the door, and found it locked.

"Justin," said I; "Justin, my dear fellow, let me in. It is Parker!"

I heard the key placed in the lock, and, in a second more, the madman seized my hand, and drew me quickly into the apartment, and, to, my horror, immediately locked the door, removed the key and placed it in his pocket.

It would not do to betray the least symptom of fear. His eyes shone with a light which was almost demonical; and I realized that I had very foolishly thrust myself into a scrape, which might furnish a very exciting item for the morning newspapers.

"Well, Justin, how have you been since I saw you last?" I remarked, in the usual off hand manner which had always marked our previous intercourse.

"Parker," said he, without deigning to notice my remark, "what do you keep looking at that door so wishfully for? You are not afraid of your friend Justin, of course not;" and then followed a succession of tantalizing laughs, so infernally fraught that I could not help asking myself if devils do not help overthrow the reason in order to take possession of the empty head, and perform their cruel and vindictive acts.

"Why, old fellow," I replied, taking care to look him steadily in the eye, "did you ever see the man I was afraid of? I think not. And why you should use that word, in reference to me, I am at a loss to understand."

"Tut, tut, man!—nonsense! Who said anything? It wasn't Justin!—eh no! It is that ugly devil that steps into my shoes once in a while, and gets the best of me."

"All right," said I. "Now, let's have some music."

And I passed him his violin, hoping it would, as I had often known it to before soothe and comfort him.

"Shall I? Shall I?" he asked, looking up, while the demon-like expression of his face changed to one of inexpressible sadness. "Shall I play for Parker?"

"Oh, yes," I replied. "Everybody up there is fond of melody. Why, heaven, my dear boy, is all one grand harmony."

"But we are not there yet," was his practical reply; consequently don't know much about it."

He took the violin, petted it a moment, as a mother might a slumbering infant, then tuned it carefully, and with another upturned, imploring look, commenced to move the bow; but not once through the long half hour that followed,did he allow that bow to touch the strings. He was just as earnest, just as impassioned, just as full of his subject as I had ever seen him, but not one sound came forth.

"There," said he, as he finished, "I played for them!"—(This in a sepulchral whisper.) "They asked me, Parker. You can't sing here; but the moment your foot touches the green grass over yonder, you will sing like a bird, Parker—a bird uncaged—a bird set free; and everybody will listen, Parker," he continued—and I wish I could describe that instantaneous change of expression from sadness almost hopelessness, to defiance and madness—"Parker, how long do you suppose it would take me to send you to kingdom-come?—that is, send you in first class style—in a masterly manner? To begin with, I should have to take this"—and he drew from his pocket a large jack-knife, and opened the glistening blade—"and get at your heart. I have always believed that the soul was there."

And then followed a long disquisition upon the different opinions entertained by philosophers and transcendentalists in regared to the abode of reasons Ugh! My blood runs cold to think of it. All the while, his fingers played with the glistening blade.

"In the first place,, I shall insert this very delicately, and in a scientific manner dig your heart out, and send it home to God. That will be the first operation. And then (you see I have studied anatomy,) I shall unhinge these fellows." And he took hold of my hand, and gave it a jerk which caused the joints of the elbow to snap in a manner truly professional. "And, Parker, you'll never know what hurt you."

"I think not," said I laughing. But oh, heaven! how I shook inside. "But, what do you think"—and I kept his eye firmly—"what do you think I should be doing, while you are attempting to make mince meat of me? That looks like real Damascus."

And I threw an adjoining glance at the horrid thing he was brandishing round his face.

"It is," said he, evidently possessed with a new idea. "Now,watch. See what a good marksman I am." He stood opposite the mirror.

"I aim at my heart,in that glass. See!" And the maniac, with a strange, rotary movement of his arm, sent the point of the knife whizzing into the very centre of the glass, shivering it iuto innumerable pieces.

You can imagine how I must have felt. He had now not only one weapon he could use for my destruction,but a thousand. What should I do? I realized that I must work quickly. With a lightning like movement, I picked up the knife, and, muttering something about the heat of the room, raised the sash, and dropped it into the yard.

"Justin," said I, sternly, "every inmate of this house will think you are drunk. Now, lie down on that bed, while I pick up this glass. You are in your stocking feet, and likely to be cut every step you take."

"All right!" he replied, immediately obeying. "The devil got the upper hand that time."

I guess I never did so much work in sixty seconds, before or since. There was no knowing how soon he might change his mind. I gathered up every fragment, and threw them after the knife.

"Now I am going to ring the bell, and order something to eat," I said,approaching the wire.

'This is my room, and I will do that," he replied, jumping from the bed, and giving the bell rope a twitch; then stationed himself by the door, and called out to the one who obeyed the summons.

"Toast and tea for two, and in a hurry." And then, turning to me, while a sardonic smile overspread his face: "Hygiene, Parker, hygiene! I am a slave to hygiene. A man should always die with his stomach in good order. A dyspeptic can never know anything about the kingdom of heaven."

"I will take the things," said I, as I heard the man returning, hoping, in this way, to slip out unharmed and unsuspected.

"No, you don't! I am quite capable of attending to my own business."

He removed the key from his pocket, unlocked the door, and, with the quickness of lightning, seized the waiter of eatables, turned and withdrew the key, before I could make the least motion to escape.

I poured out a cup of tea, and handed it to him. Again that longing,awe-struck expression overspread his features.

"Shall I? Shall I?" he moaned, looking heavenward. "No, sir; they say not. They say, 'Justin, you must never more eat,' and never more it is."

And in the twinkling af an eye, toast and tea found a resting place beneath the window.

Imagine my horror, when I found that the careless attendant had left the large iron toasting fork beside the plates. When he observed this, a gleam of fiendish satisfaction shot from his wild eyes.

"Now, Parker," he hissed, close to my ear, "we'll now see what you will be doing, while I am making, not attempting to make, mince meat of your carcass." How the poor fellow had remembered my exact language!

"Of course," he continued, "I cannot do it as scientifically with this pronged affair as with the knife; but you might as well say your prayers now, my boy. Two minutes from this time I shall hold your soul in my hand."

"Justin, my dear fellow, that's a nasty weapon to kill a friend with. Let me give you my revolver."

"No, you don't!" he roared; no, you don't! Now or never! With this or nothing!" And the maniac bounded to my side.

I seized his wrists, and shrieked for help. In a second more the door was broken in by Justin's brothers and a party of friends, and I was released from my perilous position; and, let me tell you, I have been mighty shy ever since, of crazy folks.

THE LOST CAUSE.

JUBAL A. EARLY'S ADDRESS BEFORE THE SOUTH CAROLINA SURVIVORS' ASSOCIATION.

In his recent address at Columbia, before the South Carolina Confederate Armev Survivors' Association, General Jubal A. Early said:

"We can all now see how our ancestors erred in not heeding the warnings of Henry, and Mason, and Lowndes, and how we erred in not beginning the struggle to regain our independence long years before we did; but it required sad experience to make this apparent to all of us—some saw it sooner, others later. None but a Virginian can fully understand the anguish with which the people of that State recognized the fact that the Union of their affections was gone forever. I must say that I fully sympathize with the people of my State in their anxiety to preserve the Union, and the anguish with which they came to the conclusion that it must be surrendered. When I did come to that conclusion, I went into the struggle with my whole heart and soul; not merely because I felt it to be my duty to follow my State and my section, but becacse, also, I felt that the cause for which we were called on to fight was my cause as well as theirs, and because I believe it to be right, just and holy—and I then believed it had been so from the beginning. In that faith I have remained up to the present time, in that faith I will live and in that faith I will die, though might did prevail over right in the struggle. Never, during the progress of the war, did I upbraid any advocate of secession for bringing on rhat war; and now that our cause has failed of success, I would feel that I was unworthy to be called a man, could I be induced to cast the responsibility of the war on the original advocates of secession. During its progress the only reproach I had for any secessionist was when I found one who was not willing to fight for the cause he had advocated; and, I am sorry to say, there were some of that character. Now, when I see one who has turned renegade, and affiliated with the enemies of his people, I turn from him as I would from a loathsome reptile. * * * My comrades, much loose language has been used, by friend as well as foe, upon this subject of submitting our rights to the arbitrament of arms; but, in sense can the Southern States be said to have submitted their right to withdraw from the Union to any such arbitrament. They exercised that right which was theirs, and tendered a peaceable settlement of all the questions growing out of their withdrawal. A war of invention and coercion was most unjustly and ruthlessly waged against them and they resorted to arms to defend their rights, their country, their homes, their all against the sword, robbery and fire, combined, all of which were employed by the spoiler. The result of the war settled no question of right, but merely furnished another instance of the fact that in this world truth and justice do not always prevail, and that might is often more powerful than right."

Nearer Home.

One by one the days glide away and the end of each finds us nearer home. The cares of the world may weigh heavily upon us; we may grow disheartened by the darkness around us; but away beyond that darkness, if we have faith, we will see a light and a hand held out to guide our trembling foot-steps home. But a little while and we shall fall lame by the wayside, the burden shall drop from our weary shoulders, sorrows and trials shall rack us no more; for leaving behind us the fleeting pleasures of earth, we shall go out, to the sound of music, to the peace and the rest of God. Ah, yes, we are nearer home. Day by day the time is shortened, and it may be today or to-morrow, the far-off strains of that beautiful music, which sometimes comes in our dreams, will roll grandly upon our ears, and be taught to our lips in that blessed homestead in that city on high.

Beecher On The Ballot.

When Henry Ward Beecher, of Brooklyn, approaches any public question he strikes home boldly and brilliantly, and his honest, burning words find an echo in the breasts of all right-minded citizens. The thanks of the nation are due to that gifted clergyman for having the courage to leave the beaten track of divinity and to denounce fraud; to depart from theoretical dogmatism in order to teach men their practical duties as citizens. "The redemption of the ballot," then, is a fitting subject at the present time, when every species of corruption and fraud have been had recourse to for the purpose of maintaining the domination of some political faction in many of our larger communities.

As the ballot is "the initial force of government," such a power must be kept pure and untainted, otherwise the whole political body will be corrupted with this leavening mass of impurity. "There is no other part of government that cannot better suffer derangement than the ballot. This is the very heart of the system under which we live. It is the will of the whole people. If you strike the ballot with disease, it is heart disease."

Such sins against true government as "venal voting, stuffing the ballot-boxes, and the infernal art of counting," have been employed by the corrupt of all parties in order to maintain their supremacy.

The reverend gentleman deplores that the educated and cultured are totally indifferent to the exercise of the ballot, from which he infers that the government of many of our leading cities is under the guidance of unprincipled politicians, who will stoop to any device, however dispicable it may be, to retain their power. As the highest classes give the tone and example to all others, "this indifference is the greatest crime against the ballot." If the wealthy and influential citizens will only consult their own ease and "work for money and not good laws," finding "it much easier to hear Nilson sing than to go to the primaries," then upon them rests the terrible responsibility if men of inferior position and corrupt morals direct the engine of State.

For the purpose of preserving the government in purity, Beecher recommends a firm, continued and well organized supervision of influential citzens over public affairs, and not those spasmodic ebullitions of righteous indignation which eventually terminate in such "dangerous precedents as hanging at lamp posts."

The whole community owe a debt of gratitude to such men as Beecher, Charles O'Conor and their colleagues, bold and true men, whose earnest and well directed exertions have at length succeeded in breaking the colossal influence, which the Tammany league has exercised for several years on public affairs in the State of New York. L.

IDLE GIRLS.—It is a painful spectacle in families where the mother is the drudge, to see the daughters, elegantly dressed, reclining at there ease with their drawing, their music, their fancy work and their reading, beguiling themselves of the lapse of hours, days and weeks, and never dreaming of there responsibilities, but, as a necessary consequence of neglect of duty, growing weary of their useless lives, laying hold of every newly invented stimulant to rouse their drooying energies, and blaming their fate, when they dare not blame their God, for having placed them where they are. These individuals will often tell you, with an air of affected compassion (for who can believe it real) that poor, dear mammajs working herself to death;yet no sooner do you propose that they should assist her, than they declare she is quite in her element; in short, that she never would be happy if she only had half as much to do.

A Bachelor's Will.

An old bachelor of Passaic village, N. J., named Marsh, died recently, leaving an estate valued at about $400,000, including eighty acres of choice land near Passaic and six horses. Nearly all of his property is bequeathed to his horses.—The farm of eighty acres is set apart for their exclusive comfort and support, and $300 a year to each is also provided for their additional welfare. $1,200 a year is appropriated to recompense a man whose whole time and skill shall be devoted to their care. To clinch the provisions, the executors are bequeathed the sum of $10,000 each, to see that the requirements of the will are carried into effect. This state of things is to continue for ten years, when the farm is ordered to be sold. He had no near relations, and the distant ones do not come in for their share until the specified ten years have passed.

CHILD LIFE.—Every hour that a child lives a quiet, tranquil, joyous life,of such sort as kittens live on hearths, squirrels in sunshine, is just so much investment in strength and steadiness, and growth of the nervous system. Every hour that a child lives a life of excited brain-working, either in a school room or in a ballroom, is just so much taken away from the reserved force which enables nerves to triumph through the sorrows, the labors, through the diseases of later life.

The Best Policy.

"Honesty is the best policy," says the common proverb. The sentiment is a bad one, or else it means less than can be forced from it True honesty has no policy, and knows none. It is honesty, because to be aught else is wicked and wrong. It is honesty because to be honest is to be right—because sound conscience and morality will put up with nothing else—because, in short, it is one of the divine injunctions of our better, immortal nature. To be honest from policy is to be a rogue at heart. It is to steal not, cheat not, and lie not; because penalty follows the contrary course. It is living within the statute, or in accordance with public opinion and custom, for a selfish purpose, when, otherwise, one would defy public law and common sentiment

Honesty—real, unselfish honesty—is one of humanity's noblest principles. Accustomed honesty gains one even the respect of the dishonest, and the faith and trust of all. Honesty is a brighter crown than riches, or fame, or power. It is the parent of sincerity, frankness, ingenuousness and truth, The false man cowers in its presence, and is abashed. All men praise it, and call it to arbitrate their dearest temporal concerns. Beautiful in common life, it is still more so when it guards the soul in extraordinary positions—when it sets as a hedge against the lower passions and temptations, in religion, in trade, or in whatever our post and relations may be, honesty in a great virtue. It makes the tongue utter what the heart feels, and the hand to do what the tongue professes. It is indeed, a source of profit; but not that sort of profit impled in the phrase, "Honesty is the best policy." Policy concerns temporal, external things honesty seeks eternal gain. Honesty may bring external profit and concern things, but it chiefly affects the moral nature, and concerns the soul. The great profit from it lies there.

"While as our beings range,
And lasting as eternity."

Building Character.

There is a structure which everyone is building, young and old, each one for himself. It is called character, and every act of life is a stone. If day by day we are careful to build our lives with pure, noble, upright deeds, at the end there will stand a fair temple, honored by God and man. But, as one leak will sink a ship, and one flaw break a chain, so one mean, dishonorable, untruthful act or word will forever leave its impress and work its influence on our character. Then let the several deeds unite to form a day, and one by one the days grow into noble years, and the years, as they slowly pass, will raise at last a beautiful edifice, enduring forever to our praise.

Cheerfulness.

We believe that cheerfulness can be, and ought to be, cultivated by all; that kindness is most beneficially contagious; that to carry good nature and a wisely curbed temper with you is to bring sunshine with you wherever you go; that patience and forbearance in your intercourse with family and friends and community will always bring forth the richest of social fruits; that the treasure of good deeds achieved, the sufferings assuaged, are worth infinitely more than political honors; that the creation of joy is inestimably better than the besetting sin of borrowing trouble; and with Charles Lamb, that "a laugh is worth a hundred groans in any state of the market."

Truth in Brief.

Anybody can soil the reputation of an individual, however pure and chaste, by uttering a suspicion that his enemies will believe and his friends never hear of. A puff of the idle wind can take a million of the seeds of a thistle, and do a work of mischief which the husbandman must labor long to undo, the floating particles being too fine to be seen and too light to be stopped. Such are the seeds of slander, so easily sown, so difficult to be gathered up, and yet so pernicious in their fruits. The slanderer knows that many a mind will catch up the plague and become poisoned by his insinuations, without ever seeking the antidote. No reputation can refute a sneer, nor any human skill prevent mischief.

THERE are no fragments so precious as those of time, and none are so heedlessly lost by the people who cannot make a moment and, you can waste years.

HAVE nothing to do with a man in a passion, for men are not like iron, to be wrought upon when hot.

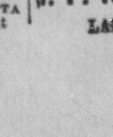
HALL'S
VEGETABLE SICILIAN
HAIR RENEWER



RESTORES GRAY HAIR TO ITS ORIGINAL COLOR, PROMOTES ITS GROWTH! AND IS A SPLENDID DRESSING. TRY ONE BOTTLE AND THICKEN UP THE THIN LOCKS!

Is the only perfected and scientifically prepared preparation of its kind ever offered to the public and has no competitor in merit. By its use GRAY HAIR is soon restored to its original youthful color and brilliancy, which is so much admired by all. Persons whose hair is thin or falling out will, by the use of our Renewer, soon see its good effects, as, by its tonic and stimulating properties the hair glands will be incited and the hair grow thick and strong again. In cases of Baldness it will create a new growth unless the follicles are destroyed. It is cooling, and allays all itching and irritation of the scalp. It does not stain the skin as do dyes, but makes the scalp white and clean. As a DRESSING it is the best and most economical preparation in the world, as its effects last so much longer. work of our prosperity, too much importance cannot be attached to the labors of this department. It is in the hands of an able head, with able assistants, as zealously devoted to introducing into the agricultural productions of the nation all useful products adapted to any of the various climates and soils of our vast territory, and to giving all useful information as to the method of cultivation of the plants, serials and other products adapted to particular localities. Quietly but surely the agricultural bureau is working a great national good, and if liberally supported, the more widely its influence will be extended, and the less dependent we shall be upon the products of foreign countries.

The subject of compensation to the heads of bureaus and officials holding positions of responsibility and requiring ability and character to fill properly is one to which your attention is invited. But few of the officials receive a compensation equal to the reasonable support of a family, while their duties are such as to involve millions of interest to private Life services demand compensation equal to the services rendered. A wise economy would dictate the same rule in the government service I do not urge upon the estimates for the support of government for the ensuing year, nor the comparative statement between the expenditures for the year just passed and the one just preceding, because all these figures are contained in the accompanying reports or in the one presented directly to Congress.

These estimates have my approval.

More than six years having elapsed since the last hostile gun was fired between the armies then arrayed against each other—one for the perpetuation, the other for the destruction of the Union—it may well be considered whether it is not now time that the disabilities imposed by the fourteenth amendment should be removed. That amendment does not exclude the ballot, but only imposes the disability to hold offices upon certain classes. When the purity of the ballot is secure, majorities are sure to elect officers reflecting the views of the majority. I do not see the advantage or propriety of excluding men from office merely because they were before the rebellion of standing and character sufficient to be elected to positions requiring them to take oaths to support the constitution and admitting to eligibility those entertaining precisely the same views but of less standing in their communities. It may be said that the former violated an oath, while the latter did not. The latter did not have it in their power to do so. If they had taken this oath it cannot be doubted they would have broken it as did the former class.

If there are any great criminals distinguished for the part they took in opposition to the government, they might, in the judgment of Congress, be excluded from such an amnesty. This subject is submitted for your careful consideration. The condition of the Southern States is, unhappily, not such as all true patriotic citizens would like to see. Social ostracism for opinion's sake, personal violence or threats toward persons entertaining political views opposed to those entertained by the majority of the old citizens prevents immigration and the flow of much needed capital into the States lately in rebellion. It will be a happy condition to the country when the old citizens of these States will take an interest in the public affairs, promulgate ideas honestly entertained, vote for men representing their views and tolerate the same freedom of expression and ballot in those entertaining different political convictions.

Under the provisions of the act of congress approved February 21, 1871, a territorial government was organized in the District of Columbia Its results have thus far fully realized the expectations of its advocates. Under the direction of the territory's officers a system of improvements has been inaugurated, by means of which Washington has become a city worthy of the nation's capital. The citizens of the district, having voluntarily taxed themselves to a large amount for the purpose of contributing to the adornment, of the seat of government, I recommend liberal appropriations on the part of congress in order that the government may bear its just share of the expense of carrying out a judicious system of improvements. By the great fire in Chicago the most important of the public buildings in that city were consumed. Those burned had already become inadequate to the wants of the government in the growing city, and, looking to the near future, were totally inadequate. I recommend, therefore, that an appropriation be made immediatately to purchase the remainder of the square on which the burned buildings stood, provided it can be purchased at a fair valuation, or provided that the legislature of Illinois will pass a law authorizing its condemnation for government purposes, and also an appropriation of as much money as can properly be expended toward the erection of buildings. During this fiscal year, the number of immigrants ignorant of our laws, habits, etc., coming into our country annually, has become so great and the impositions practiced upon them so numerous and flagrant that I suggest congressional action for their protection. It seems to me a fair subject of legislation by congress. I cannot now state as fully as I desire the nature of the complaints made by emigrants of the treatment they receive, but will endeavor to do so during the session of congress, particularly if the subject should receive your attention. It has been the aim of the administration to enforce honesty and efficiency in all public offices. Every public servant who has violated the trust placed in him has been proceeded against with all the vigor of the law. If bad men have secured places it has been the fault of the system established by and custom for making appointments, or the fault of those who recommended for government positions persons not sufficiently well known to them personally, or who give letters indorsing the characters of office seekers without a proper sense of the grave responsibility which such a course devolves upon them A civil service reform which can correct this abuse is much needed. In mercantile pursuits the business man who gives a letter of recommendation to a friend to enable him to obtain credit from a stranger is regarded as morally responsible for the integrity of his friend, and his ability to meet his obligations. A reformatory law which would enforce this principal against all endorsers of persons for public place, would insure great caution in making recommendations. A salutary lesson has been taught of the careless and the dishonest, by the arrests in the great number of prosecutions and convictions of the last two years. It is gratifying to notice the favorable change which is taking place throughout the country in bringing to punishment those who have proved recreant to the trusts confided to them, and in elevating to public office none but those who possess the confidence of the honest and virtuous, who, it will always be found, comprise the majority of the community in which they live.

In my message to congress one year ago I urged the recommendation of a reform in the civil service of the country In conformity with that recommendation congress, in the ninth section of an act making appropriations for sundry civil expenses of the government, and for other purposes, approved March 3 1871, gave the necessary authority to the Executive to inaugurate a system of reform in the matter of appointments in the civil service, and placed upon him the responsibility of doing so. Under authority of said act I commended a board of gentlemen, eminently qualified for the work, to devise rules and regulations to effect the needed reform. Their labors are not yet completed, but it is believed that they will succeed in devising a plan which can be adopted to the satisfaction of the executive, the heads of departments and members of congress, and which will redound to the true interest of the public service. At all events the experiment shall have a fair trial.

I have thus hastily summed up the operations of the government during the last year, and made such suggestions as to me seem proper for your consideration, and submit them with a confidence that your combined action will be wise statesmanlike, and in the best interest of the whole country.

BELLEFONTE REPUBLICAN

R. B. BARGER ..... PROPRIETOR

W. W. BROWN, ... EDITOR

Terms: $2.00 Per Annum in Advance.

BELLEFONTE, PA.

Wednesday Morning, Dec'ber 13, 1871.

☞ A complete file of the BELLEFONTE REPUBLICAN may always be found at the offices of GEO. P. ROWELL & CO., Advertising Agents, 40 and 41 Park Row, New York, who are authorized to represent us in that city.

This is a matter of some importance to our own distillers. The 30th of November having been generally observed as a holiday throughout the United States, Commissioner Douglas, of the Internal Revenue Bureau, announces that no assessment will be made against distillers for that day, provided work was entirely suspended during the whole of said day.

The cultivation of beet-root sugar in France has now risen to an industry of the first importance. It employs more than 400 manufactories, and the process of manufacture is each year brought to a higher state of perfection. There are in France three or four Journals specially devoted to subjects connected with the manufacture, its cultivation, its sale, the machinery required and the chemistry of the process.

Newspapers placed over or under the bed-spread will keep the sleeper as warm as an additional pair of blankets, and they are an excellent protection where there are no blankets. The larger the sheets of course the better, and it might be best to stitch them to the coverlet. They also make an excellent wall paper for cabins and shanties. These uses of an article so abundant should be generally known to the poor, who are apt to suffer in such cold weather at the present.

Referring to General Grant's views on the tariff question, the New York Herald says: "It joins issue so fairly and squarely with the free-traders that they will now be compelled to define their position in Congress and throughout the country It challenges the Democrats and free-trade Republicans to take the opposite ground of free-trade, and it is the only issue upon which is offered them that complete antagonism which is the very life of a political party out of power against the party in possession of the government."

The Rev. G. D. Pike, in the Congregationalist, gives the Chinese shoemakers at North Adams, Mass., a good character: There is not a single opium eater among them, he says, and but seven out of the seventy-four need the evangelizing labors of Brother Trask. They used to gamble a little at first, but now they devote their evenings to study. "They gladly spend their earnings for books and teachers," continues the Rev. Pike, paying as cheerfully for these as for any other valuable thing. I saw five of them with Second Readers around a lamp learning their lessons by means of a lexicon containing English words with their meaning in Chinese."

SNOBBERY vs DIGNITY.

We dislike to be always finding fault, or complaining of what our fellow citizens, or the American people may do; but we do think that the Grand Duke Alexis might receive all the honor to which he is entitled from the people of this country, without our leading men, Governors, Judges, Lawyers and Editors making snobs of themselves and thus detracting from both the true character and dignity of the great majority of the American people. We therefore endorse the following from the Phila., Post:

"When Charles Dickens wrote the American people up or down rather, were highly indignant, and when the announcement of his second visit was made, there was a tremendous hue and cry raised about his ingratitude, insolence, and all that sort of thing, in accepting the hospitalities of the country, and then going home and abusing us.

The truth is, Dickens was right. The aristocracy of the United States are a set of snobs. The moment a titled person sets a foot in this land they are sure to bob their heads and show the length of their ears. In case he has the blood of royalty in his veins, they kiss his feet, lie down before him and say, "Good Mr Prince, please trample upon us."

The New York post says that out in the Indian Territory it appears to be still an open question whether the Fourteenth amendment applies as well to the red man as to the white. The Creek Indians still hold the negroes in bondage, although the amendment alluded to was supposed to have abolished slavery in all the States and Territories of the United States. The District Attorney of the Western District of Arkansas is in a quandary, and has written to Washington for instructions. Of course the Constitution is the supreme law of the land, but the difficulty is that in our treaty with the Indians we have recognized them as distinct and separate nations, with the right to manage their domestic affairs in their own way. To get entirely rid of slavery, the Post thinks it may become necessary, therefore, to abandon the traditional policy of the Government in treating with Indians. We believe, however, that a law was passed by Congress at its last session, forbidding the recognition of Indians as distinct nationalities, in any treaty.

The New York Democratic Ring received its heaviest blow last week when Connolly turned state's evidence His confession is expected to simplify the work of the Committee of Seventy very materially and will lead to the arrest of a number of other guilty parties. The police are now busily engaged watching such of the criminals as have not already escaped. It is supposed that Tweed and several others will endeavor to get aboard some European bound steamer and escape with as much of their ill-gotten booty as they can succeed in carrying with them. The Tammany Democracy are terribly demoralized just now. No wonder they are in doubt about a Presidential candidate when their leaders are likely to be in the Albany Penitentiary before the Presidential campaign opens. —Bedford Inquirer.

The New Orleans Bulletin says: "A few evenings ago, during his engagement at the St. Charles, Mr. Forrest was in his room at the St. Charles Hotel, when the waiter presented him a card from a Mr. P., who requested a moment's interview. A few minutes later the stranger, a gentleman doing business in this city, was introduced into the presence of Forrest. After an exchange of civilities, the stranger, handing Mr. Forrest the sum of $100, told him that his father, who was an actor like Forrest, had been dead some time; that when he died, among his papers was found a memorandum recording the fact that he had borrowed this sum from Forrest, and the object of the son's visit after so many years was to honor the sacred debt."

A Connecticut lady, who is spoken of as "estimable," has sent to the Duke Alexis a "work of art" which she has an idea ought to interest him, the same being nothing less than a "large frame made of toe-nails," and the like of which does not exist in the world. She ought to have come along herself and exhibited to his Highness the toes whereon the nails grew. It is suggested that the lady is quite as reasonable in her views of hospitality as are those which many persons are putting in practice in their attentions to the Duke.—Exchange.

It is said that the New York Bar Association has already collected sufficient evidence to impeach Judge Cardoza, and, as soon as the Legislature meets, articles of impeachment against him will be presented. Much greater difficulty has been experienced in obtaining evidence against Judge Cardozo than against any others who are said to be included in the general accusations of misconduct and malfeasance in office. That those having the matter in hand have determined to rid the bench of this dangerous enemy of judicial integrity seems to be certain.

An unprecedented case of somnambulism occurred a few nights ago in New Haven, the subject being a little child three years old that went out in a storm twice in the same evening to meet is parents, and was brought back each time and put to bed without being awakened.

Washington department officials state that they have not experienced so quiet a time on the assembling of Congress for many years. Although there have been in Washington for a week past a large number of Senators and Representatives, their visits to the departments were few and far between, and the importunities for places for their constituents unfrequent. It is the general opinion in official circles that this unusual hesitancy in seeking office is caused by the desire to avoid the stringent examination which it is feared would be incumbent upon the applicant, in accordance with the rules laid down by the Civil Service Commission.

Paying the Debt.—The monthly statement of Secretary Boutwell contains the gratifying information of a further decrease in the public debt. The credit for November is $3,462,080,18, and since March 1, 1871, $72,457,479,07, an average of over $8,000,000 per month. The coin balance in the Treasury is $96,256,554,84, a decrease since the last statement of $2,797,724,39; currency, $10,283,895,53, a decrease of $160,215,77. Thus month by month is being wiped out the debt incurred to put down a rebellion fostered by the democratic party, which the same party made haste to declare would never be paid.

The old Manassas battle field was sold a few days since for eight dollars an acre. When the war commenced it was under a high state of improvement, and the dwelling house upon it was one of the finest in that section of the State; but that scourge devastation, and the open fields, and young pines, and shattered mansion—all now bear evidence to the bloody conflicts of which it was the scene.

A leading citizen of Massachusetts suggests that "the true way of correcting the evils of the present railroad system and of averting the dangers threatened by the consolidation of large capitalists, is to separate the management of the railroads from the ownership." This he would do by having the State designate agents who should be responsible for the management and operation of the roads.

Greenland's icy mountains," about which the churches so often sing, are far from being the abodes of heathenism. About half the population belong to the Lutheran communion, and the whole country is well supplied with churches, pastors and catechists. The salaries of clergymen range from $800 to $1,400, which is better than the average in this country.

The Montana papers are jubilant over the prospect of early railroad and river connection with the balance of the world. They think the railroad will be so near the Missouri river next year that light draft steamers for low water can ply on the river up to Fort Benton, from the point of connection, leaving only 140 miles of staging and land travel to Helena.

The following is a statement of the true population of the United States, just compiled by and contained in the report of the Superintendent of the Census: Aggregate, States and Territories, 38,923,210. White, 33,586,857; colored, 4,886,387; Chinese, 63,254; Indians, 383,712; Indians out of tribal relations, 25,721; Indians on reservations and at agencies, 963,662.

The clerks of the Treasury Department are highly elated at the appointment of Gen. Garfield as chairman of the Committee on Appropriations. They look upon him as their friend in their efforts to obtain the twenty per cent. they claim, and they feel confident they will get that bill through Congress this winter.

THE AMERICAN WASHER?

PRICE $5.50

THE AMERICAN WASHER SAVES MONEY, TIME, AND DRUDGERY.

The Fatigue of Washing Day no Longer Dreaded, but Economy, Efficiency, and Clean Clothing, Sure.

In calling public attention to this little machine, a few of the invaluable qualities, (not possessed by any other washing machine yet invented,) are here enumerated.

It is the smallest, most compact, most portable, most simple in construction, most easily operated. A child ten years old, with a few hours' practice, can thoroughly comprehend and effectually use it. There is no adjusting, no screws to annoy, no delay in adapting! It is always ready for use! It is a perfect little wonder! It is a miniature giant, doing more work and of a better quality, than the most elaborate and costly. One half of the labor is fully saved by its use, and the clothes will last one-half longer than by the old plan of the rub board. It will wash the largest blanket. Three shirts at a time, washing thoroughly! In a word, the ablution of any fabric, from a Quilt to a Lace Curtain or Cambric Handkerchief, are equally within the capacity of the LITTLE GEM! It can be fastened to any tub and taken off at will

No matter how deep rooted a prejudice may exist against Washing Machines, the moment this little machine is seen to perform its wonders, all doubts of its cleansing efficacy and utility are banished, and the doubter and detractor at once becomes the fast friends of the machine.

We have testimonials without end, setting forth its numerous advantages over all others, and from hundreds who have thrown aside the unwieldy, useless machines, which have signally failed to accomplish the object promised in prominent and loud sounding advertisements.

It is as perfect for washing as a wringer is for wringing. The price another paramount inducement to purchasers, has been placed so low that it is within the reach of every housekeeper and there is no article of domestic economy that will repay the small investment so soon.

All that is asked for this GREAT LABOR SAVER, is a fair trial. We guarantee each machine to do its work perfectly.

Hand-Shaking.

How did people get in the habit of shaking hands? The answer is not far to seek. In early and barbarous times, when every savage or semi-savage was his own law-giver, judge, soldier and policeman, and had to watch over his own safety, in default of all other protection, two friends and acquaintances, or two strangers desiring to be friends or acquaintances, when they chanced to meet, offered each to the other the right hand—the hand alike of offence and defence, the hand that wields the sword, the dagger, the club, the tomahawk, or other weapon of war. Each did this to to show that the hand was empty, and that neither war nor treachery was intended. A man cannot well stab another while he is in the act of shaking hands with him, unless he be a double-eyed traitor and villiain, and strives to aim a cowardly blow with the left while giving the right, and pretending to be on good terms with his victim.

The custom of hand-shaking prevails more or less among all civilized nations, and is the tacit avowal of frendship and good will, just as a kiss is of a warmer passion.

Ladies, as every one must have remarked, seldom or never shake hands with the cordiality of gentlemen, unless it be with each other. The reason is obvious. It is for them to receive homage, not to give it. They cannot be expected to show to persons of the other sex a warmth of greeting which might be misinterpreted, unless such persons are very closely related to them by family or affection; in which cases hand-shaking is not needed, and the lips do more agreeable duty.

Every man shakes hands according to his nature, whether it be timid or aggressive, proud, or humble, courteous or churlish, refined or vulgar, sincere of hypocritical, enthusiastic or indifferent. The nicest refinement and idiosyncracies of character may not, perhaps, be discoverable in this fashion, but the salient points of temperament and individuality may doubtless be made clear to the understanding of most people by a better study of what may be called the physiology of hand-shaking.

To present the left hand for the purpose of a friendly greeting is a piece of discourtesy—Sometimes intentional on the part of superiors in rank to their inferiors, and an act that no true gentleman will commit. There is no reason why it should be considered more discourteous than it would be to kiss the left cheek instead of the right; but doubtless, the custom that makes the right hand imperative in all sincere aalutations, dates from those early times when hand-shaking first began, and the hand that shook or was shaken in friendship was of necessity weaponless.

Love Gifts.

These gifts should be of little intrinsic value; they should owe their preciousness to the hand that gives. The token of love should not, by its beauty of costliness, distract the attention for one moment from the meaning of the gift—heart speaking to heart, in language eloquent though dumb.

Hamlet's presents may have been princely; but Ophelia tells us that "rich gifts wax poor when givers prove unkind." Under these circumstances the jewels become worthless, the gold is only so much dross; one of the simple violets that "withered" when her "father died" was more precious when Hamlet loved her. So it is—so it has ever been. It is the sweet madness of youth that leaves some touch of tender memory keeping green one nook in the hearts of care-worn, avaricious old age.

WHENEVER you buy or sell, let or hire, make a clear bargain, and never trust to "We shan't disagree about trifles."

A Singular Remedy.

Whenever Burke found himself indisposed, he ordered a kettle of water to be kept boiling, of which he drank large quantities, sometimes so much as four or even five quarts in a morning, without any mixture or infusion, and as hot as he could bear. His manner was to pour about a pint at a time into a basin, and to drink it with a spoon as if it had been soup.

Warm water, he said, would relax and nauseate, but hot water was the finest stimulant and most powerful restorative in the world. He certainly thought it a soverign cure for every complaint, and not only took it himself, but prescribed it with the confidence of a Sagrando, to every patient that came in his way.

A SON KILLS HIS MOTHER—In Meridan, Connecticut, on Friday last a young man named Charles Vetis murdered his mother by cutting her throat with a butcher knife, and then to complete the awful tragedy he cut his own throat and feel dead over the corps of his mother.—The double assassin was to have been married in a few days, and the union being opposed by his mother is supposed was the cause of the difficulty. The walls of the room in which the tragedy occurred were splashed in all directions with blood, the carpet torn up and the furniture overturned, indicating that the mother struggled terribly with her maniac son.—Ex.

RAILROAD CASUALTIES IN ENGLAND.—Out of three hundred and seven million people carried on English railroads in 1869, only seventeen were killed by causes beyond their own control: while in the streets of London one hundred and forty persons were killed. It is estimated that the orange peel on Londen pavements kills more people than all the English railroads.

To Dispeptics,
To Sufferers from Liver Complaint,
To those having no Appetite,
To those with broken down Constitutins
To Nervous People,
To Children Wasting Away,
To any with debilitated digesti'e Organs

Or suffering with any of the following Symptoms, which indicate Disordered Stomach or Liver.

such as Constipation, Inward Piles, Fullness or Blood to the Head, Acidity of the Stomach, Nausea, Heartburn, Disgust for food, Fullness or Weight in the Stomach, Sour Eructations, Sinking or Fluttering at Pit of the Stomach, Swimming of the Head, Hurried and difficult breathing, Fluttering at the Heart, Choking or suffocating Sensations when in a Lying Posture, Dimness of Vision, Dots or Webs before the Sight, Fever and Dull Pain in the Head, Deficiency of Perspiration, Yellowness of the Skin and Eyes, Pain in the Side, Back, Chest, Limbs, &c., Sudden Flushes of Heat, Burning in the Flesh, Constant Imaginings of Evil, and Great Depression of Spirits.

Hoofland's German Bitters.

A Bitters without Alcohol or Spirits of any kind.

Is different from all others. It is composed of the pure Juices, or VITAL PRINCIPLE OF ROOTS, HERBS, and BARKS, (or, as medicinally termed, Extracts,) the worthless or inert portions of the ingredients not being used. Therefore in one Bottle of this Bitters there is contained as much medicinal virtue as will be found in several gallons or ordinary mixtures. The Roots, &c., used in this Bitters are grown in Germany, their vital principles extracted in that country by a scientific Chemist, and forwarded to the manufactory in this city, when they compounded and bottled. Containing no spirituous ingredients, this Bitters is free from the objections urged against all others: no desire for stimulants can be induced from their use, they cannot make drunkards, and cannot under any circustances, have any but a beneficial effect.

Hoofland's German Tonic,

Was compounded for those not inclined to extreme bitters, and is intended for use in cases when some alcoholic stimulant is required in connection with the Tonic properties of the Bitters. Each bottle of the tonic contains one bottle of the Bitters, combined with pure SANTA CRUZ RUM, and flavored in such a manner that the extreme bitterness of the bitters is overcome forming a preparation highly agreeable and pleasant to the palate, and containing the medicinal virtues of the Bitters. The price of the Tonic is $1,50 per Bottle, which many persons think too high. They must take into consideration that the stimulant used is guaranteed to be of a pure quality. A poor article could be furnished at a cheaper price, but is it not better to pay a little more and have a good article? A medicinal preparation should contain none but the best ingredients; and they who expect to obtain a cheap compound, and be benefittad by it, will most certainly be cheated.

SPEAR FOR THESE REMEDIES.
Who would ask for more Dignified or Stronger Testimony?

HON. GEORGE W. WOODWARD, formerly Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania at present Member of Congress from Pennsylvania, writes:

PHILADELPHIA, March 16, 1871.

I find "Hoofland's German Bitters" is a good tonic, useful in diseases of the digestive organs, and of great benefit in case of debility and want of nervous action in the system. Yours, truly,
GEO. W. WOODWARD.

HON. JAS. THOMPSON, Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania,

PHILADELPHIA, April 28, 1867.

I consider "Hoofland's German Bitters" a valuable medicine in case of attacks of indigestion or Dyspepsia. I can certify this from my own experience of it.
Yours, with respect, JAS. THOMPSON.

HON. GEORGE SHARSWOOD, Justice of the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania.

PHILADELPHIA, June 1, 1868.

I have found by experience that "Hoofland's German Bitters" is a very good tonic, relieving dyspeptic symptoms almost directly.
GEORGE SHARSWOOD

HON. JAS. M. WOOD, Ex-Mayor of Williamsport, Pa.

I take great pleasure in recommending "Hoofland's German Tonic" to any one who may be afflicted with Dyspepsia. I had the Dyspepsia so badly it was impossible to keep any food on my stomach, and I became so week, as not to be able to walk half a mile. Two bottles of Tonic effected a perfect cure. JAMES M. WOOD.

REMEMBER
THAT
HOOFLAND'S GERMAN BITTERS,
AND
HOOFLAND'S GERMAN TONIC,
Will Cure every Case of MARASMUS,
Or Wasting away of the Body.
REMEMBER
HOOFLAND'S GERMAN REMEDIES

Are the medicines you require to purify the Blood, excite the torpid Liver to healthy action, and to enable you to pass safely through any hardships or exposure.

DR. HOOFLAND'S
PODOPHYLLIN,
Or Substitue for Mercury Pills.
TWO PILLS A DOSE.
The Most Powerful, Yet Innocent Vegetable Cathartic Known.

It is not necessary to take a handful of these Pills to produce the desired effect; two of them act quickly and powerfully, cleansing the Liver, Stomach and Bowels all impurities. The principal ingredient is Podophyllin, or the Alcoholic Extract of Mandrake, which is by many times more powerful, acting and searching than the Mandrake itself. Its peculiar action is upon the Liver, cleaning it speedily from all obstructions, with all the power of Mercury, yet free from the injurious results attached to the use of that mineral.

For all diseases, in which the use of a cathartic is indicated, these pills will give entire satisfaction in every case. They NEVER FAIL.

In cases of Liver Complaint, Dyspepsia and extreme costiveness, Dr. Hoofland's German Bitters or Tonic should be used in connection with the Pills. The tonic effect of the Bitters or Tonic builds up the system. The Bitters or Tonic purifies the Blood, strengthens the Nerves, REGULATES the Liver, and gives strength, energy and vigor.

Keep your Bowels active with the Pills, and tone up the system with Bitters or Tonic, and no disease can retain its hold, or ever assail you.

Recollect that it is DR. HOOFLAND'S GERMAN REMEDIES that are so universally used and highly recommended; and do not allow the Druggist to induce you to take anything else that he may say is just as good, because he makes a larger profit on it. These Remedies will be sent by Express to any locality, upon application to the PRINCIPAL OFFICE, at the GERMAN MEDICINE STORE, 631 Arch St., Philadelphia.

Medical.

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral,

For Diseases of the Throat and Lungs, Such as Coughs, Colds, Whooping Coughs, Bronchitis, Asthma, and Consumption.

Probably never before in the whole history of medicine, has anything won so widely and so deeply upon the confidence of mankind, as this excellent remedy for pulmonary complaints. Through a long series of years, and among most of the races of men it has risen higher in their estimation, as it has become better known. Its uniform character and power to cure the various affections of the lungs and throat, have made it known as a reliable protector against them. While adapted to milder forms of disease and to young children, it is at the same time the most effectual remedy that can be given for incipient consumption, and the dangerous affections of the throat and lungs. As a provision against sudden attacks of Croup, it should be kept on hand in every family, and indeed as all are sometimes subject to cold and coughs, all should be provided with this antidote for them.

Although settled Consumption is thought incurable, still great numbers of cases where the disease seemed settled, have been completely cured, and the patient restored to sound health by the Cherry Pectoral. So complete is its mastery over the disorders of the Lungs and Throat, that the most obstinate of them yield to it. When nothing else could reach them, under the Cherry Pectoral they subside and disappear.

Singers and Public Speakers find great protection from it.

Asthma is always relieved and often wholly cured by it.

Bronchitis is generally cured by taking the Cherry Pectoral in small and frequent doses.

So generally are its virtues known that we need not publish the certificates of them here, or do more than assure the public that its qualities are fully maintained.

Ayer's Ague Cure,

For Fever and Ague, Intermittent Fever, Chill Fever, Remittent Fever, Dumb Ague, Periodical or Bilious Fever, &c., and indeed all the affections which arise from malarious, marsh, or miasmatic poisons.

As its name implies, it does Cure, and does not fail. Containing neither Arsenic, Quinine, Bismuth, Zinc, nor any other mineral or poisonous substance whatever, it in nowise injures any patient. The number and importance of its cures in the ague districts, are literally beyond account, and we believe without a parallel in the history of ague medicine. Our pride is gratified by the acknowledgements we receive of the radical cures effected in obstinate cases, and where other remidies had wholly failed.

Unacclimated persons, either residence in, or travelling through miasmatic localities, will be protected by taking the Ague Cure daily

For Liver Complaints, arise from torpidity of the Liver, it is an excellent remedy, stimulating the Liver into healthy activity.

For Bilious Disorders and Liver complaints, it is an excellent remedy, producing many truly remarkable cures, where other medicines had failed.

THE KEYSTONE STATE.

WHY PENNSYLVANIA RECEIVED THIS APPELLATION.

There are doubtless but few, comparatively, of the great mass of our fellow-citizens that know why Pennsylvania received the appellation of the "Keystone State," and it may be equally true that few are aware of the fact that Pennsylvania decided the great issues of American Independence,

In the old Episcopal churchyard in Chester stands a plain, neat monument about twelve feet in height, erected over the remains of John Morton, one of the signers of the Declaration of Independence, July 4, 1776. It bears the following inscription:

Dedicated
To the memory of
JOHN MORTON,
A member of the first American Congress
from the State of Pennsylvania, assembled in New York, 1765,
and of the next Congress, assembled in Philadelphia in 1774, and various other public Stations,
Born. A. D. 1724,
Died, April, 1777.
This monument was erected by a portion of his relatives, October 9, 1845.

In 1775,
While Speaker of the Assembly of Pennsylvnia, John Morton was re-elected a member of Congress, and in the ever memorable session of July, 1776, he attended that august body for the last time, enshrining his name in the grateful remembrance of the American people, by signing the Declaration of Independence.
In voting by States upon the question of the Independence of the American Colonies, there was a tie, until the vote of Pennsylvnia was given; two members from which voted in the affirmative and two in the negative. The tie continued, until the vote of the last member, decided the promulgation of the glorious diploma of American Freedom.
JOHN MORTON,
John Morton being censured by some of his friends for his boldness in giving the casting vote for the Declaration of Independence, his prophetic spirit dictated from his death-bed the following message to them:
"Tell them that they will live to see the hour when they shall acknowledge it to have been the most glorious service that I ever rendered to my country,"

The circumstances attending the adoption of the Declaration of Independence by the Continental Congress are as follows: The vote was taken by the delegations of the thirteen colonies. Six of them voted in favor and six against the measure. These delegations sat right and left of the President, John Hancock. In front of him the Pennsylvania delegation was seated.

When the delegations from all the colonies except Pennsylvania had voted, and it was discovered that they were equally divided, John Hancock, perceiving that John Morton, one of the Pennsylvania delegation, was not in his seat, and seemingly aware that the latter held the casting vote in favor of the measure, arose and made a speech, urging the Pennsylvania delegation to vote for independence. He continued his exhortation until he saw John Morton enter the hall, then he sat down.

The Pennsylvania delegation stood equally divided upon the great issue, until John Morton gave the casting vote in favor of the Declaration.

Thus, John Morton decided the vote of Pennsylvania; and thus, Pennsylvania, by giving the casting vote, decided that important question; and from this circumstance she received the name of the "Keystone State," the thirteenth State, the block of the Arch.

The reason why John Morton was delayed in the occupancy of his seat on that occasion was that a number of influential persons visited him on that morning, urging him to vote against the "Declaration." But they could not prevail, and many of them did live to see the time when they had to acknowledge it was the best thing he could do, and "the most glorious service that he had ever rendered to his country.

All honor, then, be ascribed to the memory of John Morton, of Pennsylvania.

ASHES FOR PEACH TREES.—We have seen ashas used around peach trees, with remarkably good results.—We intend to use them freely in our planting, next spring. We are led to this by our observation of its good effects, as well as our experience. Unleached ashes are good, but it requires a larger quantity. Ashes probably furnish as good and as cheap a fertilizer as we can buy. Trees which have had an application of ashes hold their leaves longer in the foll, and the foliage is more glossy, and shows more perfect heafth. This demenstrates strong vitality a tree has, the more it can bear damage. Save your ashes for next spring. Now is the time to begin.

Davenport, Iowa, talks of constructing an extensive water power canal which will afford "room for a hundred such factories as have made Lowell famous."

THE IRON WORLD
Pittsburgh Business Directory!
THERE have been such repeated applications at our office and by mail for a Business Directoroy of this city, or a written list of names of manufacturers and business men, that we have determined to supply a long felt want, and to publish ourselves a Business Directory of Pittsburgh which shall be
COMPLETE & ACCURATE
And specially arranged
FOR EASE OF REFERENCE.
It is a fact, which none can dispute, that the present City Directory does not answer the purpose which this work will, and afford such information as would be of any value to a stranger desirous of finding, at a glance, the name and location of the parties he desires to deal with.
That our work may be well arranged, and thoroughly reliable, we have engaged JAMES L. BISHOP to superintend the canvass and compile it. He has had an experience of many years in this branch of the publishing business, and we are confident will bring out the finest publication of the kind ever issued in this city or elsewhere. A Directory of a city, and especially a Business Directory, requires the utmost accuracy and skill in its compilation, and none but those who have had much experience can bring out a creditable publication.
We intend to make this a work of great value to the business men of this city; and shall at our own expense, and to advertise our own publications, send copies of it to all prominent hotels, reading rooms and Boards of Trade in the United States.
This work will be issued on the finest and heaviest quality of book paper, and in a style of typography not to be surpassed. That it may prove advantageous to advertisers, the cards received for it will not be crowded all together at the end of the book, but occupy the left hand pages running through it, so that every person referring to the work must of necessity see and read the cards therein as they meet his eye.

NEWSPAPER LAWS.

We would call the special attention of postmasters and our subscribers to the followinw synopsis of the newspaper laws:

1. A postmaster is required to give notice by letter, (returning a paper does not answer the law,) when a subscriber does not take his paper out of the office, and state the reasons for its not being taken; and a neglect to do so makes the postmaster responsible to the publishers for payment.

2. Any person who takes a paper faom the post-office, whether directed to his name or another's, or whether he has subscribed or not, is reponsible for the payment.

3. If a person orders his paper to be discontinued, he must pay all arrearages, or the publisher may continue to send it until payment is made, and collect the whole amount, whether it be taken from the office or not. There can be no legal discontinuance until the payment is made.

4. If the subscriber orders the paper to be stopped at a certain time, and the publisher continues to send it, the subscriber is bound to pay for it if he takes it out of the post-office. The law proceeds upon the ground that a man must pay for what he uses.

5. The Courts have decided that refusing to take newspapers and periodicals from the post-office, or removing and leaving them uncalled for, is prima-facie evidence of intentional fraud.

CROWDED OUT.—In consequence of having neighbored with the Watchman in setting up the Presidents Message we were compelled to close our forms and go to press on Monday night. Our comments on the Message, Congressional news and much other interesting matter have been crowded out. Even our review of Tax-payer and the defaulting collectors.

DENTISTRY.—Dr. S. Belford, is again in town and will remain for two week's from this date. Dr. Belford, as we have frequently said, is one of the best Dentists in the State. He understands his business in all its branches. Ye toothless people male and female now is your opportunity. Office up stairs over Messrs Linn & Wilson's Drug Store; boards at the Bush House.

LIST of Letters remaining in the Bellefonte Post office, and unclaimed, Dec. 11, 1871:

Miss Angeline Boyer.—2, Wm. Bland, Richardson Brooks, Mortimer Buell, Bridget Dolain, Miss M. E. Hunter, M. C. Erven, Caleb Kephart, Moses Kline, John C. Markle—2, Jacob Meyer, Miss Mary Ann McBride, John H. Nice, Samuel B. Ralston, Miss Ellen Smith—2, Daniel Shearer, Miss Mary J. Shutt, Mrs Annie Sailor, Geo. W. Sweitzer, Miss Joe Shutt, L. T. Taylor, Ezra B. Walter.

PERSONAL &c.—J. J. Stein, Esq., the gentlemanly Agent of the Old Lebanon Insurance company, paid our Sanctum a visit on Monday last. He is an active, energetic man, and we have no hesitancy in saying that he represents one of the most reliable Insurance companies in the State. The Policies are perpetual. It takes no steam or manufacturing or other like hazardous risks. Let the people of Centre look into this matter. Mr. Stein will remain in Bellefonte for a few days. He is stopping at the Butts House.

COUNTY INSTITUTE.—The Centre Co., Teacher's Institute will be held this year in Reynold's Hall in Bellefonte, commencing on Tuesday morning December 26th 1871, at 9 o'clock, closing on Friday evening the 29th inst. Prof. J. W. Shoemaker, Principal of the Philadelphia Institute of Elocution and his wife Mrs. R. H Shoemaker, who is Associate Principal of the same Institution will both be present, during the entire term, James Calder, D. D., Prof. J.S. Roberts, of the Bellefonte Academy, Supt. Horne, N. L. Atwood and other celebrated workers in the cause of Education will be present. Prof. Magee, is putting forth every exertion to make the Institute a success. Every teacher in the county should be present if possible.

ACCIDENT.—A man named Erasmus Yocum, on the 7th inst., met with a serious accident at the saw and shingle mill of E. M. Sturdevant, on Black Moshannon, Rush twp. Mr. Yocum was employed as night watchman in the mill, and had commenced his work of cleaning out before the mill shut down. While shovelling sawdust from under a small shaft making 160 revolutions in a minute, the shaft caught his coat, and carried him around several times, and then tore the coat entirely off, together with his vest and shirt. His right arm was broken—he was otherwise badly bruised and injured, and now lies in a critical condition. At this writing we cannot tell whether he is yet living. The great wonder is, that he survived one minute.

MUSICAL ASSOCIATION.—The citizens of Pine Grove, Ferguson twp., have formed a Musical Association composed of some of the best citizens of the twp., conducted by Prof. Carter. The Association will open on the 25th, and will give three sessions each day, closing on the 29th day of December, 1871. On Friday evening the 29th, a grand Concert will be given. It is the intention of the Association to make the Concert on the evening above named, a grand affair, worth more than all it will cost for the admission to the entire session of four days. These musical associations, we think are to be recommended, and parents and guardians, should do all in their power to patronize them. Music is an accomplishment. Every child should be instructed sufficiently, to sing with the spirit and the understanding also. 48-3t

On the 6th inst., in Pine Grove, of Diphtheria, James Irvin Musser, aged 25 years and 12 days.

The death of Mr. James I. Musser, has cast a peculiar melancholy and gloom over the entire community. A death occuring under circumstances in which this did—so unlooked for, and so little expected, has had the effect of creating a sadness seldom witnessed. A shaddow of gloom ever hangs every countenance—every heart has been moved, and every sympathetic chord has been touched. Eight days previous to his death, he led to the Bridal Alter a beautiful young lady, (daughter of Mr. P. Lytle,) and in the presence of a large company he was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to the lady of his choice. To all human appearances, a bright, happy and prosperous future was reasonably expected and predicted by the numerous friends and acquaintences of the happy pair.

But death has stricken down the young husband, and blasted every hope, and blighted every anticipation, and the young and happy bride, a weeping widow—the Bridal adornments lain aside, and the habiliments of mourning assumed.

On Friday the 1st inst., a large and respectable company gathered at the residence of Mr. George Musser, the Father of the desceased, when a most sumptuous dinner was prepared by the Mother in honor to her son. All hearts were joyous, and happy, and the most cordial congratulations extended to the Bride and Groom. There stood the young husband in all the strength and pride of manhood and noble bearing, with his young and beautiful wife leaning on his strong arm. No one dreamed, or thought that the King of terlors, could step in, and with unrelenting hand mar a scene where all seemed so hopeful, so joyous, and so happy. But, Alas! alas! how little is the future known to us. On Saturday the 2d inst. Mr. Musser complained of sore throat, but was still going about. On Sabbath morning Dr. Smith, was called in, who pronouced the disease an attack of Diphtheria. Yet no one thought the case a critical one, untill. Wednesday morning the day of his death, when the disease assumed its most violent form, and refused to yield to human skill and effort, and the patient sufferer passed into the unknown, and unseen future without a struggle; thus in the short space of eight days, this community passed through scenes, so extreme, and so adverse, which appear more like a dream than a reality.

1st. The joyful festivities of a wedding and infair seasons. 2nd, On the wake of these were introduced the distressing scenes of a death bed with all their heart-rending realties, and 3d, The solemn funeral procession bearing to the grave, the young husband, the Son, and the Brother.

The community is amazed and stunned over a dispensations which so fearfully and quickly reverses the scene of human life, from joy the most exquisite, to sorrow the most profound, from laughing to weeping.

We all bow with reverance and in humility before high Heaven, and exclaim oh! how inscrutible are thy Providences, O Lord God Almighty.

THE BELLEFONTE SPRING.

BY SHADY.

Beautiful Spring!
With sunlight aquiver;
Rippling and dimpling,
And sparkling forever;
Where the cool hill-sides meet,
Kissing the mountain's feet;
Thou, through the valley sweet,
Hast'ning with footsteps swift—
Lottering, never.

Musical Spring!
Rythmical ever;
Pathetic, passionate, discordant never.
Ah! I remember well,
Better than tongue can tell,
How like a merry bell,
Ringing its silvery knell,
Comes thy soft tremulous tones,
Flowing on, ever.

Bountiful Spring!
How bless we thy giver;
Useful, and busy, and beautiful ever.
Turning the giant wheel,
Whirling the rapid steel,
All for the people's weal—
Throwing crystal water over the hill,
Indolent never.

Wonderful Spring!
Despairing never;
Peacefully flowing on to the sea,
Thou dost a lesson teach,
Thou dost a sermon preach:
Without money or price—alike free to each,
Of God's wond'rous plan, the salvation of man,
Who is faithful, ever.

Icy cold Spring!
Yet never congealing;
Well may we hail thee as Bellefontain,
For where can thy like be found?
Where doth more grace abound?
Who shall thy glories sound?
Father and mother, sister and brother—
Alchohol—never.

Mystical Spring!
With moonbeams aquiver;
Thou can'st not always in sunlight rejoice,
So, we, as we journey o'er life's stormy sea,
Have darkness, or light - sorrow or glee;
May dash on the rocks, or smoothly, like thee,
Glide peacefully into the Ocean of Life;
Resting there, ever.

HARDWARE.—Our enterprising friends J. & J. Harris at their large and extensive Hardware Store in this place, are doing a magnificent business. This is owing to three reasons: 1st. They are honest men and deal fairly with their customers. 2nd. They always keep the best of everything and sell at reasonable rates, and 3rd. Because they have in their employ Lieut. H. H. Benner, than whom a more active and obliging clerk cannot be found. They keep constantly on hand all kinds of Hardware, and stoves of every variety; but just now they claim to have a specialty of the TWILIGHT GAS BURNER, which is said to be the only perfect Gas Burning, Base Burner Stove in the market. They also have the Parlor Heator for sale. Every Stove and Heater warranted to give entire satisfaction. They have sold a large number of the Twilight Gas Burner and the purchasers declare since trying them that they would not have the Morning Glory or any other Gas Burner in their house. Messrs. J. & J. Harris understand their business fully, and are at all times prepared to fill orders. See Advertisement in another column.

GRAND.—Rev. James Mullen, Pastor of the M. E. Church in this place, preached a magnificent national sermon on Sunday evening last, from these words, "The lines have fallen unto me in pleasant places; yea, I have a goodly heritage." 16th Psalm, 6th verse.

The sermon was descriptive of the political and religious privileges of the American people, as contrasted with the condition of less favored nations. He spoke of the rise and progress of this nation, and said the child of yesterday was the giant of to-day. Our railroads, our manufactories, our workshops and sturdey and intelligent workmen, as well as the inventive genius of the American people were all spoken of in that glowing and beautiful language, for which Rev. Mullen is so justly celebrated. He made us feel that our lines had fallen in pleasant places, and that had indeed a goodly heritage.

In the course of his remarks, Mr Mullen paid a deserving and glowing tribute to the worth of the wives, mothers and daughters of this great and glorious land. We do not pretend to give his exact language, but we think the following is the substance of the language used:

We are proud of our American mothers, the best God ever gave to any nation; they are the brightest stars in the crown of our nationality. We are proud of our American ladies; virtuous, intelligent, refined—and beautiful without the aid of rouge and enamel. May they live till they grow old, and be lovely even amid the faded adornment of years. The man, who, in applying the rule of a just measurement to the strength and glory of the American Republic, refuses a high place to our American women, is a hideous embodiment of monstrous skepticism. If there is one such in this audiance, I would say to that one, sir, your room on these shores is better than your company. Get out from beneath the folds of a flag to the glory of which your presence is an insult.

There were other passages in the discourse worthy of notice; but we have not the space for further refference at this time. It would afford us pleasure to be able to lay the entire sermon before our readers. We will, however, before closing, note one other idea embodied in the remarks of the gentleman. In alluding to the privileges guaranteed by the Constitution to all who respect the laws he said, "Not a right is denied the citizen, except the right to be a slave."

SMALL-POX.—This terrible scourge has been raging in many parts of the country. As yet there has not been a single case in this town or county; but there is no telling how soon it may put in an appearance. We therefore, for the benefit of our readers publish the following directions, for preventing its spread, as adopted by the Philadelphia Board of Health:

1st. Vaccination and re-vaccination, and thorough isolation of those sick with small-pox or varioloid, are the principal and most important means to be adopted to diminish the spread of this loathsome disease.

2nd. If the vaccination scars are insufficient in quality or quantity, re-vaccination is necessary. This must be determined by a physician.

3rd. Every small-pox patient should be strictly secluded at home or in hospital during the whole progress of the disease, as well as during convalescence from it, and until all power of infecting others is past.

4th. Nurses should always be selected from those who are themselves protected from small-pox, either by having had this disease or by having been thoroughly vaccinated.

5th. Have the patient placed in one of the upper rooms of the house, the farthest removed from the rest of the family, where is to be had the best ventilation and isolation. Keep the room constantly well aired. Remove all the carpets and woolen goods, and all unnecessary furniture.

6th. Change the clothing of the patient as often as needful, but do not carry it while dry through the house, but first place it at the bedside in a bucket of scalding water before removal from the room.

7th. Boiling is the surest way of disinfecting all contaminated clothing. If infected clothing cannot be washed at once, let it be set to soak in water, to which may be added of a saturated solution of permanganate of potassa or chloride of lime about a tablespoonfull to the gallon.

8th. Small-pox is supposed to be most contageous during convalescence, therefore strictly observe that the patient does not mingle with the family until all scabs are entirely off and only after a thorough purification by washing and entire change of clothing. After the patient is well or leaves the room let it be purified by the use of disinfectants, by whitewashing and by scrubbing the paint and floor with soap, soda and water, and let such rooms or apartments be well aired before being again occupied.

9th. In regard to food and medicine always rely on the advice of a physician, who should be sent for as early as possible.

NEW BOOK.—"Chicago and the Great Conflagration" is the title of a new work written by Elias Colbert and Everett Chamberlain of the Editorial staff of the Chicago Tribune, and published by Messrs. Hubbard & Bros., 723 Sansom st., Phila. This work contains 500 pages with 30 spirited illustrations, is ably written, and is just the work that every person should have. Our young friend Nelson Lucas, has secured the Agency to sell this book in Bellefonte, Boggs, Spring and Huston twps. He is a reliable man and will deliver the books himself.

DEATH OF A FRIEND.

BY E. S. HOWARD.

There's another mound in the graveyard,
Another dear one lies;
Crowned with the beautiful flowers,
Under the changing skies.

Sweetly the wild birds warble,
Gently the flowers wave;
Softly the swaying zephyrs,
Murmur o'er his grave.

Gone in the golden morning,
In the first sweet flush of dawn;
In the midst of his manhood dreamings,
His hopes and his visions gone,

Fair was the beaming promise,
That arched the op'ning way;
Into the pure bright regions,
Where his glad feet should stray.

When boyhood's rosy brightness,
Should deepen, and flush, and gleam;
Into the fuller splendor,
Of manhood's light serene.

With eager feet he traversed,
The radiant open way;
When the fearless stygian blackness,
Swept suddenly 'cross his way.

A moment the dark-browed monarch,
Strives with the struggling soul;
The victor angels pinions,
The rescued saint enfold.

Triumphantly they bear him,
Away from the shades of night;
Up through the shining gateway,
Into the city of light.

And angels' sandals lightly,
Ring on the golden street;
And they lay the ransom'd spirit,
Down at Jehovah's feet.

Oh! the wondrous beauties of Heaven,
Glory, the heart hath not known;
Oh! the bliss of his many mansions,
The gleam of its great white throne.

Thy brief, bright journey ended,
With its labors few and light;
The shades of thy earth-crossed vanish,
In thy radiant upward flight.

EXCITEMENT IN THE WILLIAMSPORT CATHOLIC CHURCH.—We have been aware, for some time past, that there was a difficulty in the church of the Annunciation, (Roman Catholic), in this city, growing out of the fact, as we are informed, of a failure of the congregation to raise the amount of money required to be raised by the Bishop of this diocese. Week before last Father Stacke, the officiating priest, was ordered by the Bishop to discontinue his ministrations or to say mass in that church. At the same time Rev. John Koper, the priest officiating at the church of St. Boniface, was ordered to take possession of the keys of the Annunciation church, and not to allow the same to be opened until further orders from the Bishop. On last Sunday week there were no services in the church; but on last Sunday evening a very large congregation assembled, as notice had been given that Father Stacke would preach at that time. In the course of his remarks the speaker alluded to the difficulties between the Bishop and the church and stated that it was not a personal matter with him, but the question was with the congregation, who owned and had paid their money for the property, whether they had a right to any control over it. At this point some one in the congregation interrupted by stating that he thought it was a personal matter. Father Stacke said: "Put that man out." In an instant a rush was made for the offender by almost the entire congregation. They sprang over the tops of pews and all was, for the moment, confusion and excitement. The man escaped through the front door, which was immediately guarded by two policemen to prevent pursuit, thus saving severe injury, if nothing worse, for the man who had dared to interrupt the proceedings. Father Stacke—on seeing the excitement—sprang forward and urged the excited congregation to return to their seats and be quiet, as the occasion of the disturbance had beat a precipitate retreat. This request was complied with, and services were completed, but there is great excitement among the Annunciation people, and the end is not yet.

There is a possibility that some important ecclesiastical questions may grow out of this affair. It involves the right of absolute and arbitrary control by the Bishop of all church property and all priests even against the will of the congregation who have bought and paid for the property. The question may also be raised as to whether a priest can be removed from a congregation which is opposed to his removal, without cause and without a trial. We believe these are questions never settled in this country, although in France and some other countries no priest can be taken from a charge without cause shown on a fair trial. The question to be settled is whether a more arbitrary rule is to be applied in this country.

NEWSPAPER MEN.—Some writer to us unknown truthfully remarks that there is no class of people who do half so much good, or work so hard, as newspaper men. They publish good papers, and they strain every nerve to do this, but the populace do not consider this, or the fact that newspapers are a fair index of their own intelligence and enterprise. Some papers put up with all sorts of expedients to get along, when there are scores of influential men who are greatly benefitted by the papers who do nothing to sustain them. They might speak a good word for them, get their friends to subscribe for them, sustain them with their advertising patronage, and thus remunerate the hard-working newspaper men. Every citizen ought to be animated by sufficient pride, if by no other motive, to sustain good papers, and thus see them worthy representatives of the people.

THE DEVIL—IN THE OPERA HOUSE.—Mr. Arthur P. Devlin held forth to an audience composed of about one hundred men, in Ulman's Opera House, on Sunday afternoon. Women and boys were not admitted for reasons which became obvious as the lecturer proceeded in his discourse. It was, not to put too fine a point on it, of the blackguard order, having neither modesty or decency to recommend it. His story of the confessional may or may not be true. If it be true nothing but growing intelligence and virtue in those who feel it their duty to attend upon it, will correct the evil. The exposures of unprincipled adventurers and vulgar blackguards will have no influence for greater purity.

This man first came to our city as a "reformed" Catholic Priest. He visited prominent protestants and well known christian men, professing to be himself a christian. His first lecture in the Academy of Music had nothing particularly objectionable in it so far as we could learn, but his lecture on Sunday was, in almost every respect, objectionable. It is not that he differs from us or from a majority of our citizens that constitutes the objection. To his opinions, if he has a perfect right and he also has a right to express them if he can get hearers. We have a degree of respect for an honest, earnest, sincere man, who calmly and conscientiously expresses his views. The Jew, the Christian, the Infidel, the Catholic and the Protestant all have a right to be respected if they treat others with respect. To be let alone when they do not; but when this Devlin, under the pretence of exposing the evils of Catholicism, attacked in the most offensive manner, the whole christian system, he shows himself a hypocrite and unworthy the respect of any party or sect. In the course of his remarks at the Opera House, he launched forth in a tirade against all who believe in the Trinity, declaring that he looked upon the Virgin Mary, not as an object of worship, but in the character of a prostitute. It is a credit to the audience that there was no more excitement than two or three indignant protests from individuals, and an indignant withdrawal of most of his hearers.

But this is not all of his evil talk. He protested that he was not a free lover, yet he advocated bold and unblushing licentiousness, and proclaimed himself an unmarried libertine, defending, as nothing wrong, promiscuous intercourse of unmarried persons. If the confessional was a place as corrupt and corrupting as he stated, we can conceive of no more fitting place for a man of his ideas, and from his character as stated by himself, we think it far more probable that he is an unprincipled priest, excommunicated for his vulgarity and licentiousness. We have no hesitation in advising all decent Protestants, who regard truth, honor and purity, to give him no sort of encouragement, and to treat him as an unprincipled adventurer, bankrupt in moral character as well as purse.

We clip the above from the Williamsport Gazette & Bulletin, which by the way, is a most excellent paper. It did the work for Mr. Arthur P. Devlin in Bellefonte. He came here last week and over his own name, published an announcement both in the Democratic Watchman and REPUBLICAN that he would deliver a lecture on Saturday night, in Reynolds' Hall. Saturday night came and to the credit of our intelligent town, not a soul went to see or hear the Devil—in Reynolds' Hall. From what we gathered from conversing with Mr. Devlin we think he is a dangerous man—a free lover and that all Protestants as well as others will do well to give him a wide berth. Let him reform or go to work as an honest man should do. We are about tired of these traveling humbugs.

"LO CHILDREN are a heritage of the Lord. As arrows are in the hand of a mighty man, so are children of the youth. Happy is the man that hath his quiver full of them." Perhaps there is no season of the year when the paternal and filial relation, with all its endearing associations, so fully and forcibly, gives expression to the glowing language of inspiration, as the festive season upon which we are just entering. What more lovely and interesting scene on this busy, throbbing sphere, than the joyous interminglings of both "young men and maidens; old men and children." What more appropriate time for the exercise of the civil and refining amenities of social intercourse? What time so fitting for the indulgence of that emotional nature stined to its deepest depths by the hallowed recollections which cluster around the greatest and best gift to men. If at any time is reached that sublime height, "It is more blessed to give than to receive," most assuredly have we that heaven born enjoyment when we are within a week or two of Christmas. That the fathers, and mothers and children, and young men and maidens, of this town and neighborhood, may have opportunity for the purchase of gifts suitable for the approaching holidays, they are, one and all, invited to the spacious bazaar of James Welch & Co., opposite the Bush House, where they will receive a most cordial welcome.

TO THOSE WHO ARE BOWED DOWN by nervous Debility, and despair of ever recovering the vigor and vim of manhood we earnestly recommend DR. WALKER'S CALIFORNIA VINEGAR BITTERS. Before they have finished the first bottle, they will feel the restorative principle at work in every portion of their broken-down systems and hope will spring up in their hearts. No case of Dyspepsia Biliousness, Intermittent Fever, Rheumatism, Gout or kidney disease, can resist this unequalled vegetable tonic which is unpolluted by any distilled or fermented liquor.

CAPTAIN JAMES GALLAGHER.

Steamboat Captain, of Pittsburgh, Pa. writes: "The inventor of MISHLER'S HERB BITTERS is a benefactor to the human race. I was a victim to the worst form of Dyspepsia; my health failed to such an extent that my Physicians pronounced me incurable. I had used all sorts of remedies and even took a voyage to California but nothing relieved me. When MISHLER'S HERB BITTERS was recommended I refused to use it; but my friends insisting, I at last yielded. I am thankful that I did so, for it cured me, and I am now as well, hale and strong as I was fifteen years ago."
